Electronic Information Resources

Digital Institutional Repository

This is an open-access database that captures, preserves, and disseminates the research and intellectual output of the University academic community (staff & students). It manages academic research materials generated by the University community and enhances the visibility of UoN research output; current holdings exceed 105,000 entries. The repository is accessible from anywhere at any time.

E-Journals & E-Books

The Library website provides access to academic electronic books as well as access to over 130,000 peer-reviewed full-text electronic journals in all disciplines to facilitate the teaching and research activities of the University.

Remote Access

Our electronic resources (e-journals & e-books) are accessible from anywhere at any time via our remote access service. This service requires a student to have specific credentials to gain access, namely - Students E-mail account & Students Active Directory account.

Library Guides & Presentations

A collection of recorded how-to videos on how to navigate the Library website, the various services provided therein, and much more.

Special Books Collection

We offer a variety of rich and diverse information resources in our special collection. These include -

The East Africana Collection

This collection stocks materials on East Africa in general and Kenya in particular. The collection is enriched by postgraduate degree theses and dissertations of the University of Nairobi as well as other relevant material submitted elsewhere.

Archives & Audio-Visual Collection

A collection of rare information material of great historical interest - Including material relating to the history of the University of Nairobi, going back to the years when it was known as the Royal Technical College of East Africa with sister colleges in Tanzania & Uganda; as well as archived newspapers as well as documents from the British colonial government going back to the early 1900s.

Services & Facilities

Dissemination of Information

A key function of the Library in service to the University community and beyond. Services include lending, inter-lending (with other institutions), and provision of access to electronic resources.

Ample reading spacing

The University has invested in increasing the seating capacity in all Library facilities to accommodate increasing library users. A new graduate library targeted at post-graduate students was established in 2019. Named the Mahatma Gandhi Graduate Research Library, it is a spacious modern and ICT ready facility that creates an all enabling environment.

Bindery Services

Our modern bindery facility handles all Library and University requirements for quality finishing of printed works. This includes the professional finishing of official University documents as well as students' academic theses and dissertations. The bindery helps to conserve and preserve worn Library print texts.

Photocopying Services

The Library offers this service to students and staff members subject to the observation of copyright laws.

Library Rules & Regulations

Borrowing Library Materials

- Only registered users will be allowed to borrow library material.
- Some Library collections are not for loan and are appropriately marked.
